I need not come here to tender you the freedom of our magnificent and prosperous commonwealth, for the great cause you represent holds a commanding position in every city, in every town and hamlet and home throughout our borders. Wherever you may travel within purattractive and progressive domain, you will find the cause of education dear to dur people, you will be welcomed with the great-st hospitality, and made to feel that you are not strangers within our gates. We feel especially honored by your presence in our commonwealth, and appressate the distinguished honor bestowed at your last session in the selection of me of our own citizens as your president.

president.
You come to a State that has always shown its devotion to the great cause of education and at no time in her history has she ever failed to recognize that the stability and safety and power of the commonwalth could best be preserved and prometed by the education of its children. Upon those who are directing the educational forces of our country. and from two by the education of his chiliren. Upon those who are directing the educational forces of our country, a great responsibility reets. Cleveland Hypocrisy

The N w York See administers a eacthing chule to the Plesident 11 the filtume remarks suggested by the restoration of wages now that the tariff tikering programme manymrated by evelord and Wison has referred its futh those it the election of a Lepubli-House

It is pleasing and instructive to watch what Mr. Geveland calls the 'from heel of capital impring on the 'nock of the row watch what Mr. Geveland calls the 'from heel of capital impring on the 'nock of the row vertal weeks now at almost or it of for several weeks now at almost or it of pressure from organized labor, and of their own wolltion thereby have been found it hely and unvoluted, under not it of pressure from organized labor, and of their own wolltion thereby have reason is that business has revived, that the commercial outlook is full of encuragement and that being able to limit to wages they prefer to do son! Inder I ke conditions the American employer has always done the same thing.

The ton verse of this proposition would at pear to be that labor when evil times a vertake eight yers, should of its own it attive reduce wages. That is to say, tabor should recognize the true nature of a relation to capital as promotily and as rationally as capital recognize instructions. This is the position would are rationally as capital recognize in the relation and its thingation to labor. This is not a positiar view of the sub-ect, but it is common sense and although labor deep not at a mit the fact, it is the principle when the teact, this the principle when the teact, it is the principle when the teach and of the principle with the teach of the same the decrease in wages precisely as under other and opposition was considered in the labor of the same than the principle with the teach of the same than the principle with the teach of the same than the principle with the teach of the same than the same t wages precisely as under other and opposite conditions it operates to raise waged.

When Mr (leveland started out to experiment with the tariff and thereby purged every manufacturing incusiny in the United States into such uncertainty that business could no longer be carried on with confidence or safety, the wage scale declined in every direction, and teased entirely in many Rvery identation to good a chance to miss. The oppressors of labor were closing their this or catting down the wage scale with the merelless avariee that fallways marks the the attitude of capital toward labor. Had not Mr. Cleveland called attention to the "scenes that were being ensated at Fomestead" in the name of capital, and was it not a fitting time for every frient of tell to raily against the shorteness are successful to the raily against the shorteness and extortions of the rod?" The relations between King Oscar and Storthing continue strained and the Emperor's timely visit to the Swedish capital may create each an impression upon the Norwegians as to render them open to compromise.

Advices received from Christaina, Tuesday last, gave promise of a speedy settlement of the difficulties, the Radical majority in the Norwegian parliament voting diplomatic and consular budgets, apparently under the influence of scare, but the thought of what will undoubtedly happen if any part of the monay thus voted shall be used to cover the expenses of the royal reception of the German Emperor at Stockholm, Saturday, and his entertainment throughout his stay, gives darker aspect to the situation.

Storthing's vote explicitly stated that the budgets were carried under certain conditions, which stipulations are of a appearance.

William Polk of Gloucester, Mass., aged 53, Sunday afternoon feloniously assaulted his daughter, aged 13, whom he induced to go with him to a remote and lonely part of the city known as Apple Road. He Shows Theorist Buchman That He An

A new Darwin has arisen who has proved to his own satisfaction at ter eating is least, that man is a development of effectually the ape. And he less chosen the humble and innocent babo as the base for his deduct ons. Ho sees the monkey in the man, or rather in the gestion and babyi at every turn. "Monkey: are snub nosed; so are babios." fore babies are monkeys. Could anything be clearer then that? That is S.F. Buchman's theory of evolution. Carrying the same idea a little fur ther, I might say with fruth that dugongs are snub word; so are by the famous Temple Quartette of Bos- habies. Ergo, babies are durings. The one reasoning is as senseless as More members, of the association have the other. This Mr. Buckman carbeen arriving on the evening trains and ries the resemblance let ween belies it is probable that to-morrow will see a and morkeys through a whole catavery large attendance. Has this genius ever seen a dog will. ing; or a cat, or a hors a or any othor of the familiar animals? If his reasoning be followed to the hitter end, it can be proved that we are descended from the horse, the ass, the Auburn Park. This gentleman took goat the dog or even the whale. We show points of research at co to all of them at times, particularly the second, and especially when we get hold of the pen and ink and commit to paper our opinions of things ingeneral. You cannot persuade me, Mr. Buckman, that my ancestors were ever anything but men ages perhaps, but still men, and not goats nor monkeys nor kengaroos. Having studied the Euckman theory thoroughly and grasped all its possibilities, I consider invself now sapable of demonstrating to my realers that they are kingarnes or lescendants from the kungaroo. 1. The kangaroo stands or its hand legs; so does man. 2 The kanga 700 eats regetable matter; so does man, when he can get it. 3. The kangaroo hops: ditto man, especially when he has trodden on the jenetrating and of a tin tack. 4. The kangaro's arms are shorter than its legs; so are man's. 5. The rangueou runs away when it is seared; man des the same. 5. The kingaroo serietimes passes food to its mouth with its paws; ditto mun when he does not possess a fork or does not know the use of it. 7. The Eangaroo haks behind him as he is me ving off; so does man-to wit, Lo 's wife. And so on. I might find resemblances all the way from the tip of the kanga-roo's nose to the end of his massive tail, but further comparison is quite unnecessary.
